

I'm not looking for "just" a Family Law Associate

If I were, I'd be running the usual bland ad - You know the type I'm talking about:

Associate Wanted.
Intelligent, hardworking, dedicated, blah blah blah.

I don't run the usual law firm and therefore I'm not looking for the run-of-the-mill associate attorney for my practice.

We are a paperless law office and utilize modern technologies in streamlining our business and in the actual practice of law, such as a cloud-based practice management system, 24/7 access by clients to their files, multiple monitors for work stations, remote work capability, and use of tablets (including in court). If learning new software /hardware scares you, this isn't the right fit. We are not your father's law firm.

Of course I'm looking for an intelligent, skilled, hardworking, detail-oriented individual for the position; however, I want someone who also brings with them a positive attitude, is a team-player, and has a desire to learn new things.

Our firm focuses on Family Law, Personal Injury, and Credit Reporting cases. I'm looking for an experienced attorney to focus on our extremely busy Family Law practice, with an eye toward eventually taking the lead on these types of cases.

Candidates must have a minimum of 4 years litigation experience in order to hit the ground running once our systems/procedures are learned. Experience with Family Law and the Tidewater courts are advantages, but these are not necessarily determinative factors if you are a great fit otherwise.

Our current team includes an office manager/marketing director, paralegal, administrative assistant, and part-time marketing-content provider. Finding the right second attorney for our tight knit team is critical. I'm not looking for a cog in the legal wheel to just crank out work - I want a superstar that will help us grow the firm. You will not only continue to expand your knowledge of the law and gain litigation experience, you will also learn modern client management and marketing methods/techniques to generate business and serve your clients more effectively.

So...as you can see, I'm not looking for "just" an associate attorney. I'm looking for an exceptional lawyer who is interested in making a career change. This job will not be for everyone, but for the right lawyer this could be the opportunity you have been looking for.

Base Compensation and production bonuses to be determined based on qualifications/experience.

To apply, first investigate our firm at our website to learn more about us (www.ktparkslaw.com). If this sounds like the right opportunity for you, email our office manager, Deb Montagna, at dmontagna@ktparkslaw.com. The subject line must read: "I'm the right lawyer for your firm" and the email must be 12 pt. sized font. In your email, tell us why you are the attorney for the open position - let your personality shine through. Also include a description of a personal memorable court-room experience. Lastly, attach a current resume in Adobe Acrobat format along with a writing sample.

All inquiries will be confidential. No phone calls - E-mail only.
